

The figure displays a 3x3 grid of 9 diagrams. Each diagram is a square containing a 2x2 grid of intersection points. At each intersection, two lines meet: one horizontal and one vertical. The orientation of each line (left-pointing, right-pointing, up-pointing, or down-pointing) varies across the diagrams, creating a pattern of line orientations within each square cell.