

The figure consists of a 3x3 grid of nine square diagrams. Each diagram represents a spin configuration on a square lattice. The central square of each diagram has four arrows pointing towards its corners. The four squares immediately surrounding the center have arrows pointing towards the central square's edges. The spin values (up/down) vary across the grid, representing different states of the system.